

Contents

About the author xii

Foreword xiii

Acknowledgements xiv

Introduction 1

The harsh reality facing sales professionals 5

The background to neuroscience and how it applies to selling 9

A guided tour of your customer's three brains 13

The reptilian (old) brain 15

The emotional (mid-)brain 16

The rational (new) brain 18

Mirror neurons 22

The buying process and the buying brain 25

Go upstream! 29

A primitive brain in a modern world 29

Stay away from danger; move towards reward 30

Neural maps 32

Adaptive selling 37

Adapting to the nature of the selling situation 39

The PRISM model of human behaviour and adaptive selling 47

Brain chemicals 53

The four quadrants 55

The four customer colours 57

How to read your customer and how to adapt your style 61

Observe 62

Classify 70

Adapt 70

The ‘Neuro-Sell’ brain-friendly selling process – the first phase: Consider 79

Stage 1: consider 81

The ‘Neuro-Sell’ brain-friendly selling process – the second phase: Maximize comfort 87

Stage 2: comfort part I: connect 87

Stage 3: comfort part II: chameleon 90

Stage 4: comfort part III: control 91

The ‘Neuro-Sell’ brain-friendly selling process – the third phase: Establish context and catalyse 95

Stage 5: context and catalyse 95

Stage 6: check 117

The ‘Neuro-Sell’ brain-friendly selling process – the fourth phase: Convince 119

Stage 7: convince 119

The ‘Neuro-Sell’ brain-friendly selling process – the fifth phase: Close the deal 147

Stage 8: confirm and conclude 147

Some more brain-friendly selling tips 153

- Being memorable 153
- Keeping it simple 155
- Making changes 155
- Using metaphors 156
- Going multi-sensory 157
- Spatial association 158
- Giving the customer's brain something to complete 161

Body language and the truthful brain 165

- Observing the customer 167

Neuro-negotiating 179

- Why (most) salespeople aren't good at negotiating 181
- Two distinct skill sets 182
- The importance of feeling comfortable feeling uncomfortable 183
- The five stages of negotiation 185
- The importance of planning and preparation 186
- The four different negotiators 188
- Different negotiation styles 190
- The power/comfort balance 190
- Comfort builders 191
- Power builders 193
- Is the customer lying? 200

Conclusion 203

- References* 205
- Further reading* 207
- Index* 209